There is said to be Michigan white cedar shingles now doing good service on roofs in that State that have been in full exposure and wear for over seventy-five years. It is thus seen that climate affects the durability of shingles, and the fact that white cedar is the natural product of Michigan, and red cedar of the Pacific coast, is held to be proof that the red cedar is naturally adapted for use on the Pacific coast and the white for use in sections of the Middle and Northwestern States, &c. A peculiar objection, is brought against the red cedar by some—namely, that there exists in that wood an acid which is in the climate of certain sections sacted upon by water as to corrode rapidly the nails with which the shingles are fastened onto roofs, the rust extending to the wood around the nails, and soon causing a leaky roof—this action explaining the holes so often to be seen around the nails in red cedar, roofs. Another point offered for consideration in this connection, is the fact, as stated, that a shingle is ruined by kiln drying, and that no kiln-dried lumber can be regarded as of equal value to outside work of that which is air-dried.—Chicago Tribune. There is said to be Michigan white ce-

In a recent letter to the manufacturers Mr. W. F. Benjamin, editor of the Spectator, Rushford, N. Y., says: "It may be a pleasure to you to know the high esteem in which Chamberlain's medicines esteem in which Chamberlain's medicines are held by the people of your own State, where they must be best known. An aunt of mine, who resides at Dexter, Iowa, was about to visit me a few years since and before leaving home wrote me asking if they were sold here, stating if they were not she would bring a quantity with her, as she did not like to be without them." The medicines referred to with her, as she did not like to be without them." The medicines referred to are Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, famous for its cures of colds and croup; Chamberlain's Pain Balm, for rheumatism, lame back, pains in the side and chest, and Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy for bowel complaints. These medicines have been in constant use in Iowa for almost a quarter of a century. The people have learner of a century.

Complaints From English Enlisted Men. Story of an Subaltern. Recently a batallion at Lucknow were lectured on parade on the gross impropriety of failing to salute officers in garrison towns when out walking, and they were told that they ought not to have any difficulty in recognizing officers. "I should greatly like to know from the author of this proposition," says Labouchere in London Truth, "what are the outward visible signs by which officers in plain clothes are to be distinguished from civilians. One unfortunate Tommy, who writes to me on the subject, tells me that in India the only course for a soldler, who is anxious not to omit to salute an officer on the street, is to salute everyone he meets. 'I defy anyone,' he says, 'to tell an officer from a civilian out here. The civilians put on such a swagger and imitate the military so that some of them look more like officers than the officers themselves.' Perhaps this is what makes the officers so sensitive on the subject of being saluted."

The which is the reminder of a pleasant story of American military life. A young officer complained to his superior that a ceitain enlisted man failed to salute him when he was in cits. "Very well," replied the commandant. "You parade in citizens clothes before Recently a batallion at Lucknow were

SICIANS.

As a rule I am opposed to proprietary medicines. Still I value a good one, especially when such is the source of relief from pain. As a topical (external) application I have found Chamberlain's Pain Balm the best remedy I have ever used for neuralgia of any kind. I have conscientiously recommended it to many persons.
